A Step Ahead

Why does Bishop Fenwick have the reputation of being a step ahead? There is no one answer to this question since many different aspects make the school such a unique place. It is certain that to each person, Fenwick is special in a different way, because each person is an individual with his/her own opinions.

Academics, to some, is what makes Bishop Fenwick a great school. The quality education here is unique to Bishop Fenwick and is possible only because of the pride and concern of the faculty. Teachers are dedicated to helping students broaden their horizons. They are always willing to give more help to students who show they need or want it.

The religious aspect also makes our school stand out from others. Students are joined together in a community of God. Members of other faiths are welcomed warmly with an open heart into the Fenwick community. We come together to celebrate our common faith and to act out our Christian values.

At Bishop Fenwick, sports play an important role in student life. Team spirit is strong while athletic ability is superior, placing many of the teams in the top ranking of the region. Dedication and hard work separate our players from all others.

Probably one of the most important points that places Fenwick above the rest is the feeling of friendliness and the spirit of true friendship. Often referred to as the Fenwick Family, students, faculty, coaches, administration and alumni work together to form a close-knit group which cares about one another. The Fenwick community consists of people of different ages from various backgrounds. The diversity of the group makes the school an interesting place, and at the same time, better than any other.

Bishop Fenwick is an outstanding secondary school whose influence throughout the community is a positive one. This image is made possible by those who come together to form the Fenwick Family. Not only a continuing dedication to learning and development, but also a spirit of unity, puts Bishop Fenwick High School a step ahead.

A Change of Pace

Fenwick is not the same school it was four years ago. Since the class of '88 entered Fenwick as freshmen, many changes have taken place in Fenwick's atmosphere, faculty, curriculum, and even the building itself.

The most drastic change in daily life at Fenwick has been this year's introduction of uniform school sweaters. Although somewhat controversial, the adaptation to the sweaters was quicker and easier than expected.

The last two years have brought an influx of new teachers. Every department has at least one new member, bringing a fresh influence to classes and many new faces in the halls. While we will miss our old friends among the faculty who have left, we welcome our latest ones.

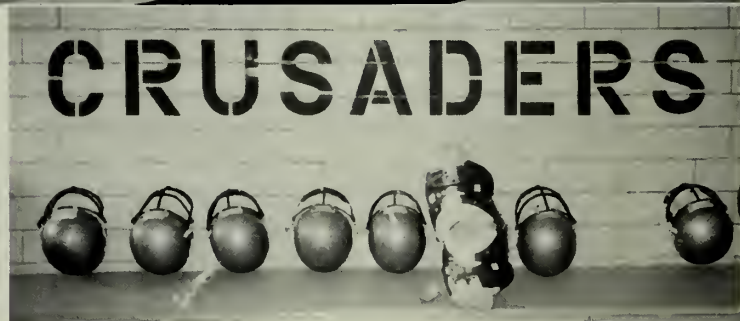

Along with the new teachers came two new departments: Campus Ministry and Development, whose goals are to improve the religious and financial aspects of our school, respectively.

The most notable change in the curriculum has been the introduction of Advanced Placement courses. Every department except Business and Religion now has one AP course, designed as college credit for students who excel in a certain academic area.

Changes have also occurred in the school building itself. The largest structural improvement was the addition of an entire wing of classrooms now called the Lectures. Also, when we entered Fenwick the Chemistry labs were over twenty years old. Last summer they were completely updated with modern equipment. Now science students will be able to perform a wider variety of experiments.

The locker rooms were also renovated last summer by Mr. Soucy and the Pigskin Club. We have new lockers, benches, and floors, affording our athletes a better environment in which to improve their skills. Along with new facilities, Fenwick's athletic program has expanded to include a new Boy's Swim Team and Basketball Cheerleading Pep Squad.

The changes which Fenwick has undergone have not altered the family spirit for which Fenwick is renowned; rather, they have simply improved the Fenwick experience.

Clockwise: Now. The refurbished chemistry labs are a vast improvement over the outdated facilities. Ready and waiting. The new locker room gleam before the team arrives.

SENIORS '88

Striding Toward Victory

Bishop Fenwick High School is more than just one step ahead of the other schools in the Catholic conference. We have managed to win the prestigious Nason Award for the last five of six years. This award honors schools for overall outstanding performance in sports. One reason why we do so well in the competition for this honor is the diversity of our sports program. For a school of less than 1,000 students, Fenwick fields an amazing number of varsity, junior varsity, and freshmen teams for both boys and girls. This fall 379 student-athletes participated in the various sports. The gym, playing fields, and even the parking lot and corridors are filled with athletes every day from 3:00 until after dark. There truly is something for everyone who wants to participate in a sport at Fenwick.

Another ingredient in our success is the coaching staff, a dedicated group of men and women consisting primarily of teacher-coaches. Some teachers coach only one sport a year, while others, like track coach John Farley, coach during the entire school year. All coaches choose this activity because of their expertise and love of both the sport and the participants.

A third reason for success is teamwork and leadership. The team captains are expected to set good examples both athletically and academically. They take their duties seriously on the field and in the classroom. Says Athletic Director James McHugh, "We've made a commitment to sports, along with academics. They go hand in hand."

Typical of Fenwick's achievements is the record for the Fall 1987 season. Of our eight varsity sports, we captured two league titles and were in second place in two others. In addition three of our four teams qualified for the Eastern Massachusetts Tournament. Is there another Nason Award in sight for 1987-1988?

Step Into The Real World!

No matter where we go on the North Shore, we are likely to see Fenwick students hard at work. For many, work is an important part of life. Jobs provide a source of income and a place for social interaction, whether it be with customers or co-workers. Many students need to work in order to pay school expenses while others chose jobs primarily for experience or enjoyment.

Jobs provide another place to grow. Students discover how to balance their work schedules with school, sports, and social activities. On the job, employees assume new responsibilities, learn new skills, and become adept at getting along with each other and with customers, both friendly and hostile. In the workplace, students also meet new friends and experience success in a practical way.

Fenwick students have many different jobs. Each has the job of being a full-time student, but the "extra-curricular" job market is diverse mainly because students interests are as different as their reasons for seeking employment.

Student are employed in a variety of positions. Patrick Kulakowski works as a short-order cook at the J.B. Thomas Hospital while Lisa Scioli is a member of the Jordan Marsh Junior Council. We work in as many places as we live, from Ipswich, where Michelle Gates works as a hair-dresser's assistant for Renate's Hair Design, to Gloucester, where Yankee Fishing Fleet employs Matthew Earl as a maintenance helper.

Today's teenagers are determined to succeed in jobs, to have the satisfaction of earning their own money, and to learn how to budget their time. Fenwick students especially have the spirit that drives them to succeed in school as well as in the working world.

In His Footsteps

A unique aspect of Fenwick is its religious program. A Catholic school, Fenwick offers opportunities for and encourages the spiritual involvement of each student. A major force in this effort is the Religious Committee which meets and organizes events through the Campus Ministry. Students and faculty work as a team promoting the overall spiritual life here. The Religious Committee also coordinates school liturgies, penance services and advent programs.

Service through the curriculum is readily available for students and is an important part of the work of Campus Ministry. After three years of classroom religion courses, students are encouraged to choose from two unique electives. The first is Apostolic Service which allows students to take the knowledge acquired in class and apply it to community services. Students are required to volunteer their time at places like the North Shore Children's Hospital, the House of Seven Gables Settlement House, and the Hunt Nursing Home. In the other course, Proclaiming the Good News, students teach CCD in their own parish program each week. Both academic courses provide wonderful opportunities for students to live out Christian beliefs and apply the knowledge of the Faith learned in the classroom.

Fenwick students reach out to diverse groups in the larger community by feeding the hungry, providing for the needy, comforting the sick and raising money for certain charities. Campus Ministry encourages and plans such activities both within the school and the community. Co-director of the Religious Committee, Ms. Elizabeth Sullivan sums up the work of the Campus Ministry very well by saying, "Campus Ministry tries to deal with and relate to the whole person — the mind learning about the faith, the heart developing a growing feeling of sensitivity, and the hands — what we have learned being carried out into the community."

Steps Together

Before homeroom we meet them. We sit with them at lunchtime. While teachers aren't watching, we try to talk to them but usually get caught. After school we become their teammates. Instead of studying, we can spend hours on the phone with them. We get together during the weekend. It seems as though we spend every minute with them. Who are they? They are our friends.

At Fenwick friends are an important part of our experience and, for some, the most important element of school life. Long after some of us have forgotten the periodic table or rules for punctuation, we will remember our friends and the good times we had in high school. We learn to rely on one another, to give and receive help and advice. As freshmen we rely on each other for practical information such as how to get to Julie Hall or 209. During sophomore year friendships become stronger, more defined. At this level we need friends to give us a pinch to remind us that we're no longer freshmen! In the third year of high school, we all need friends to help us with the pressure of balancing academia with work, sports, activities, and free time—or what's left of it! Finally as seniors we depend on friends to help us through the college admissions process and to remind us that our last year as the Class of 1988 should be a memorable one. By this time our friendships have fully developed; we totally trust one another and are finally past the kind of superficial relationship we might have had when we first came to Fenwick.

Friendships at Fenwick are different from just any relationships. Perhaps because we come different backgrounds, we are more interested in each other and grow closer together. We share common experiences and goals. Each of us, while different from the other, is, in one way, the same; we all need friends to share our good times and our bad times. And at Fenwick, such friends are not hard to find.

Learning Step by Step

Social activities and sports might give us a needed break from studies, but academics is the real reason we attend Fenwick. The courses we take during these four years are designed to prepare us for college. We all take four years of English to perfect our grammatical and writing skills, refine our vocabularies, and teach us to appreciate literature. We also take four years of Religion, spending the first two years discovering ourselves and our role in organized religion and the last two years taking courses that explore one aspect of religion such as death or marriage. Or some of us decide to apply our faith to the community through Proclaiming the Good News or Apostolic Service.

Along with four years of English and Religion, we all take three years of mathematics — Algebra I as freshmen, Geometry as sophomores, and Algebra II as juniors. Seniors can take Analysis and Trigonometry, Math Topics, Math IV, or AP Calculus.

Most of us spend at least three years in the History Department, taking European Cultures, Asian/African Studies, and U.S. History. Remember our troubles with the U.S. History term paper? As seniors we can take electives such as Law Studies, Government and Psychology.

The science labs were renovated this past summer, enriching an already superb department. Although only two years of science are required (Biology and Chemistry), most of us choose to take Physics as upperclassmen.

Foreign Language is one of our most popular departments, offering four years of Latin, French and Spanish. Some pursue one language throughout four years; others decide to try each language.

No Business courses are required, but most take at least one course such as Computers or Typing, whether to develop these skills for our personal use or for a career. For the students who excel in certain areas, Fenwick offers AP courses in all departments except Religion and Business. The Fine Arts Department, which includes a variety of music and art courses, adds an opportunity for students to express themselves creatively. Since a strong mind needs a sound body in order to operate, we are also fortunate to have an excellent Physical Education Department.

With such a wide variety of superb courses, it is clear why we are academically a step ahead of other schools.

This past winter we said farewell to an integral member of the Fenwick family, Sr. Mary Louise Burns. Fr. Richard Messina summed up our feelings best when he said: "How can we describe her? She was intense and energetic. She was disarming and disquieting, funny and serious, dedicated and devoted. She was a confronter. You knew immediately where you stood with her. She was all of those things."

With love, we dedicate our yearbook to Sr. M.L., who loved us enough to always demand the best of both herself and us.

"We'll get higher and higher.
Straight up we'll climb
Higher and higher — leave it all behind
Higher and higher — who knows what we'll find.
And in the end, on dreams we'll depend.
Cause that's what love is made of."

Van Halen

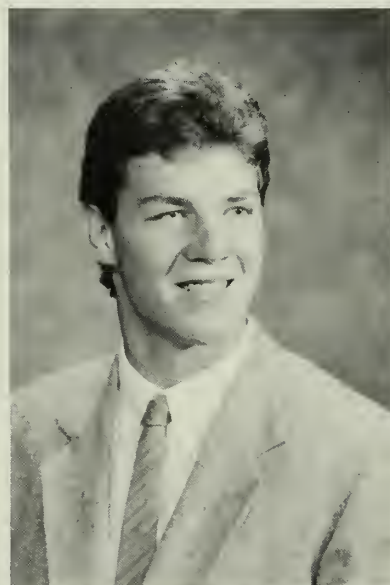

Julie E. Day

Goodbye yesterday. Now it's over and done. Still I hope somewhere deep in your heart, yesterday will live on. — Foreigner
Ambition: You never know.
You know?

Nancy L.
Arnesani

A fool will lose tomorrow reaching back for yesterday. I won't turn my head in sorrow if you should go away. I'll stand here and remember just how good it's been.
Ambition: To be worthy of my parents' respect and to always have a TRUE best friend to count on.

Michele L. Ayers

We laughed until we had to cry, and we loved until our last goodbye. We chased those dreams we never found and sometimes we let one another down. But, we were the best I think we'll ever be, just you and me, for just a moment. —
Cynthia Weil
Ambition: To come through all my experiences, good and bad, with a little more wisdom and a smile. I love you Mom.
Thanks for everything.

Kenneth M.
Banville

Wherever you go and whatever you do, keep your feet on the ground and keep reaching for the stars. — Casey
Casem Ambition: To be successful in my field and to help others while I'm working my way up to the top.

Anthony R.
Barbaro

You learn little from victory; you learn everything from defeat.
— Christy Matthewson Ambition: To pitch in the world series, or to be a brain surgeon
— whichever comes first.

Duane J. Batista

If I leave here tomorrow, /would you still remember me?/ Well I must be traveling on now./cause there's too many places I've got to see./If I stay here with you now./ things just couldn't be the same./ 'Cause I'm as free as a bird now/ and this bird you cannot change. — Lynrd Skynrd
Ambition: To avoid the noid. —
Domino's Pizza

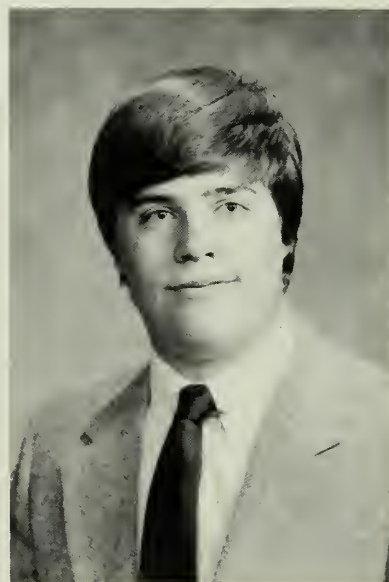

Richard M. Bergeron

WHY?
Ambition: To be me.

Liane M. Bergstrom

We've saved a place within our hearts and ever in our minds for memories which are never hard to find. — Anonymous
Ambition: To do the best I can in whatever I do, and to follow my dreams, because someday they will come true.
Thank you Mom. I love you.

Dana P. Berube

If you're riding down the street in a four-door canoe with a camel and three chickens and the door comes off, how many egg rolls fall out? None
— because Chinese people don't eat pizza. D.B.
Ambition: To make millions through the invention of the plasma car — an automobile capable of going through anything without injuring its passengers.

As for me, all I know is that I know nothing. — Socrates Ambition: To get it right the first time.

Michelle A. Berube

To be a star/ You must follow your own path./ Shine your own light./ And don't worry about the darkness/ for that is when the stars shine brightest. — Unknown
Ambition: To be all that I can be, and to make my parents proud.

Blaine C. Bisegna

I'm not bragging baby, so don't put me down, but I've got the fastest set of wheels in town. If someone comes up to me, he don't try. 'Cause if she had a set of wings, man, I know she could fly. — Beach Boys

Ambition: To make a lot of money, really fast, and make my parents proud.

fails, a psychiatrist.

Tisha L.
Christopher

Some people come into our lives and quickly go, while others stay in our hearts and leave footprints that will last forever. Thanks Class of '88 — I love you!
Ambition: To be the best I can be, and to always be remembered and loved as a true friend to all and a smile-maker. I love you Mom, Dad, Marty, Krista, Ellen, and Sean.

Elena L. Ciampa

I hate words. People brush over them without seeing their meaning. You must know how I feel without my explanation.
Reach out from the inside through your eyes, with your soul.
Ambition: To be a dream to some; to others, reality; to a few, unknown; to all, true.

Nothing stays constant;
everything changes, and you've got to be able to deal with those changes. It's either that, or you're gone. So whether you're playing football or working in an office, the real goal has to be to keep improving, to keep doing the best you can. You just can't let yourself get down, or you'll end up going nowhere.

Jennifer A. Colcord

But I still haven't found what I'm looking for ... — U2
Ambition: To try to achieve anything that may come my way.

Glen A. Cole

After the smoke cleared/It was down to you and I/Then the sun appeared/And there was nothing left/But goodbyes ... / — Silent Night
Ambition: To make big bucks, to be proud of my progress, and to share it with the one I love.

Jennifer L. Connell

It won't be easy for us, while distance separates us. We must look forward to tomorrow knowing that we are each day closer to the dreams we hold. If we feel alone, we should close our eyes and remember our smiles, and listen to our warm voices, and feel the love that surrounds us. We must live each day together remembering the times we've shared.
Ambition: To always have friends who love me for me, like the ones I've made at Fenwick. Thanks for everything K3. I love you Mom and Dad!!

Carolyn M. Connors

There's a "Miracle called Friendship" that dwells in the heart. And you don't know how it happens or when it gets its start ... But the happiness it brings you always gives a special lift. And you realize that "Friendship" is God's most precious gift!

Now the lines have all been read/and you knew them all by heart. Now you move toward the door/here it comes, the hardest part. Try the handle of the road/feeling different, feeling strange, This can never be arranged/as the light fades from the screen/from the famous final scene. — Bob Seger Ambition: To make my family proud and to always let them know that I love them.

John A. Delpero

Excuse me while I kiss the sky — Jimmy Hendrix
Ambition: To finish high school and go through life without getting stopped.

Jeffrey L.
Demeule

I'm just another heart in need of rescue/ Waiting on love's sweet charity/ An' I'm gonna hold on/ For the rest of my days/Cuz I know what it means/ To walk along the lonely streets of dreams/ And here I go again on my own/ Going down the only road I've ever known/ Like a drifter I was born to walk alone/ And I've made up my mind/ I ain't wasting no more time. — Whitesnake

James K. Kane Jr.

I am interested in anything about revolt, disorder, chaos — especially activity that seems to have no meaning. It seems to me to be the road toward freedom ... Rather than starting inside, I start outside and reach the mental through the physical. — Jim Morrison

Ambition: To prove that life is simply/ A game we all play to amuse/ And occupy the time of/ A Supreme Being.

Krista L. Katsapetses

So much can happen in such little time, so many dreams can come true, but then disappear. Good times don't last forever but sometimes, don't you wish you could hold on to them; just a little while longer, long enough to make the memories better? When you look back there's nothing you'd want to change, except for time. You see there is never enough time. Goodbye always comes too soon. No matter how hard you try to fight, in the end, the tears always fall ... B.M.

Ambition: To be the best I can be and to keep my friendship with Heather. Thanks Mom and Dad.

Brett M. Kawczynski

New York, New York. It's so nice, they named it twice!

There has been, however, one moment in my life, one brief and beautiful moment which has taught me more than all the other moments put together. I call the moment Fenwick. — Fr. Dick Messina

Ambition: To share with others the love and friendship that my family and friends at Fenwick have shared with me, and to make the world smile.

Amy L. Nickerson

What I carry in my heart/ Brings us so close or so far apart/ Only love can make love. — Peter Gabriel Ambition: To bring a smile everywhere I go. To help others as much as people have helped me. To one day settle in the countryside with the one that I love, raise a family, live happily ever after, and find the Holy Grail.

Heidi L. O'Connell

We learned, we loved, we laughed, we cried, and now it's time to say goodbye. Our hearts won't let go. Why does it have to end? Why now, when we're so comfortable, do we have to leave and start again? But the time has come for us to go. We must spread our wings and fly and hope that the memories we've made through the years will never die. — Heidi Ambition: To face each day with a smile and to love my children unconditionally — the way my parents love me. I'll miss you, Fenwick.

Peter O'Connor

Yesterday all my troubles seemed so far away./ Now it looks as though they're here to stay./ I believe in yesterday./ Life is very short./ There is no time for fussing and fighting, my friend. — The Beatles

Ambition: To be happy and satisfied in life — not by other people's standards — but by my own.

Shannon M. O'Connor

Stepping Off On Their Own

It is encouraging to see how hard work and dedication bring rewards to fine individuals who strive to maximize their potential. Matt Earl is one such individual. An exceptional student and superb athlete, he exemplifies the spirit of doing one's best. Matt joined the increasingly competitive world of diving when at the age of ten he joined the local YMCA swimming team. An enthusiast since the first dive, he has given more time, hope, and energy to the sport than most teenagers are ever able to give. Lightly dismissing his daily ritual of early morning practices before school and more practice after school, Matt has been able to find a comfortable balance of both academic and athletic demands.

Matt's success in the Northern Sectional Meet where he was diving champion and only participant who qualified from the North Shore was preceded by other significant accomplishments. He set the league diving record in the Catholic Conference where he was able to qualify for the National Diving Championships to be held in the spring and placed 24th in last year's YMCA Nationals. Having reached his goal to dive in this fiercely competitive event, Matt hopes to be able to continue with the sport through college. And beyond that, perhaps the 1992 Olympics? Matt humbly doubts the possibility, but perhaps his unflinching commitment and hard work will cause the improbable to materialize.

These Four Walls, the band composed of Chris Shaw, Larry Wright, Jim Kane, junior Kevin Levesque, and Lynn English senior Glenn Young, could be described as Fenwick's "best-kept secret." The band was formed two years ago by Chris Shaw, the inspiration behind the music for the 1987 comedy hit, Fools. The group plays diverse types of music, ranging from Top 40 "cover" songs to more progressive, avant-garde, original works. Bass guitar played by Kevin Levesque, drums and lead vocals by Larry Wright, keyboard and supplemental vocals by Jim Kane, guitar by Glenn Young, and Chris Shaw's lyrics and lead keyboard combine to form a band heavily influenced by Genesis, Peter Dinklage, Yes, and U2. Live performances at Lynn English's various banquets and dances have earned the group an invitation to an Amnesty International concert at St. John's Prep, and a possible performance at Fenwick's spring talent show. For the present, These Four Walls seeks the recognition at Fenwick that it has earned elsewhere; and then, looking to the future, the band members remain optimistic that they will continue to perform. Perhaps, one day, Bishop Fenwick students will be able to say "we knew them when . . ."

Since the third grade, Christopher Jarzynka has developed a keen interest in weather and meteorological phenomena. Chris is currently a member of the Boston chapter of the American Meteorological Society — an organization which attracts aspiring weathermen throughout the Bay State. He uses state-of-the-art computer technology to tap into various computerized national weather networks which provide him with satellite photographs and statistical data which aid in accurate predictions. Chris uses this information to run the "Jazz Weather Net" which provides storm-related weather information to the North Shore area.

Chris has met with numerous local weathermen, most notably Bruce Schwoegler who was kind enough to invite him for a tour of the studio's weather facilities. Chris has also done some on-camera forecasting for Channel 13 in Lynn, and is currently looking toward projects with the North Shore News cable station.

Chris plans to major in meteorology at the University of Lowell and pursue a career in on-camera meteorology. Keep your eyes peeled, as Chris Jarzynka may soon be bringing a new brand of forecasting to Massachusetts.

In addition to his track and field accomplishments at Bishop Fenwick, Scott Carpenter devotes himself to helping his community as an active Eagle Scout. Ever since he became a Boy Scout in the seventh grade, Scott has moved steadily up the ranks receiving numerous merit badges until finally achieving the ultimate and well-deserved title of Eagle Scout. Scouting offers Scott several opportunities to expand his leadership skills and to research the needs of his community. He continues to develop and teach skills in managing money, physical fitness, fire-building, cooking, setting up camp, and safety regulations.

Scott sets an invaluable example for scores of young scouts and instills in these aspirants a solid set of good values and morals. His leadership not only benefits these boys themselves but also helps them become active contributors to their own communities. Scott's abilities and scouting experience should be an inspiration to us all and teach lessons in loyalty, trust, courtesy, leadership and citizenship.

In July of 1987, Lisa Scioli and Jeanine Stella became members of the Jordan Marsh Junior Council, an advisory board founded in 1941 by Ms. Edna Somers, composed of high school junior and senior girls who represent their respective schools in all of Jordan Marsh's junior activities. Lisa and Jeanine were selected from eighty to one hundred applicants, and each underwent a series of stringent interviews before she could become a full-fledged member of the council. The girls model in fashion shows, learn about modern beauty and fitness trends, and participate in various community service projects. The two girls inform Jordan Marsh's merchandise buyers of current trends and lifestyles of Bishop Fenwick students, and then voice their opinions on selected samples — especially prom fashions — that will appear in forthcoming seasons. Lisa and Jeanine have enjoyed their experiences on the Council, stating that "it has given us a chance to be part of the fashion world and has shown us a new sense of responsibility." They have learned about careers in fashion, modeling, and cosmetology, and plan to pursue their interests in these fields throughout college.

Step By Step to a Great Summer

Most Bishop Fenwick seniors think of summer as a period of time devoted to pleasure, rest, and relaxation. It is a time to put down the books and to take a break from a stressful academic year. But, many seniors do venture beyond typical summer standards. Fenwick students had many new and exciting opportunities during the summer of 1987, opportunities which have helped students to grow and to learn more about themselves. Seniors Maura Moran and Hester Tinti pursued college-level courses during their vacations. Dennis Cormier, Lisa McGloin, Marlene Myslinski, and Roxanne Byrne soared to new athletic heights, while Linda Spyropoulos forged her way through Europe. John McCaffrey and Lawrence Wright attended a special Massachusetts State Police training program, while Amy Nickerson and Rebecca Hale reached out to the poor and gave of themselves during their time in Haiti. Even more seniors worked closer to home, and some chose to spend their time soaking up the sun on those lazy summer days. Members of Fenwick's senior class spent their summer in various ways, and each returned in September to blend their individual talents, thus creating The Class of 1988.

Santa Claus is Coming to Town

Operation Charlie is a special time for a group of Fenwick seniors to experience the joy of giving at Christmas. It is a tradition that every year during the holiday season the seniors and their teachers travel to St. Charles' Orphanage in New Hampshire for a Christmas party for the children.

Laughter and smiles filled the home as the seniors met their new friends. The children were very excited when Santa aka Kevin Wood finally arrived to hand them their gifts. Afterwards there was time for everyone to enjoy the new toys and also to gather to sing Christmas carols. Unfortunately the afternoon passed too quickly, and it was suddenly time to say goodbye.

Everyone left the home with happy memories and a sense of reward that can only be achieved by the sharing of oneself with others.

Administration

Mr. Ralph LeDuc
Principal

Education should not be a competition but rather a desire to work hard using our talents to become the best we can so that we can help and serve others.

Education, without a sense of morality, ethics, and a commitment to better society, is self-serving and non-productive.

Sr. Geraldine Burns, SND
Vice Principal

When Sr. Geraldine's name is mentioned, many students react by wondering who did something wrong. This is a natural reaction because Sr. Geraldine is thought of solely as a disciplinarian. Although this is her most visible function, she has many other duties at Fenwick. Her philosophy on discipline is that "once rules are set up they apply to everyone and should be administered fairly, without exceptions." She also feels that rules should not be changed in the middle of the school year.

Besides being disciplinarian, Sr. Geraldine is also the Vice Principal and is in charge of both reporting grades and recording attendance. This multi-talented woman began her career at Fenwick as a math teacher. She soon moved on to become head of the Mathematics Department and then part of the administration as an Assistant Principal.

Despite her many duties, Sr. Geraldine says that she is never too busy to spend time with students, whether they are in trouble or just want to chat with her. After all, "if it weren't for the students, I wouldn't be here," she notes. She feels that it is her job, along with the teachers, "to mold students for the future and make them realize that there is life after high school."

When she finally gets time off, Sr. Geraldine enjoys reading, watching many sports events, and pursuing her interest in photography. She never complains that she has too much work though, because "Fenwick is a fine school." Sr. Geraldine is clearly one of the people who make it that way.

Mrs. Constance Skahan
Junior Counselor

Although the sign on the door in the Guidance Office reads "Mr. John Jaworski," there is more than an average counselor within this room. The fourteen-year employee of Bishop Fenwick returned to his alma mater from Brown University because he "couldn't think of any better place to make decisions about his life than at 'home'." After teaching psychology, sociology, and religion here for ten years, he "wanted a more personal contact" with the students. The purpose of his one-year sabbatical was to obtain his master's degree in counseling at the high school level, enabling him to "talk to kids about what is important to them." He wants to help with the students' interests, not the interests of the counselors.

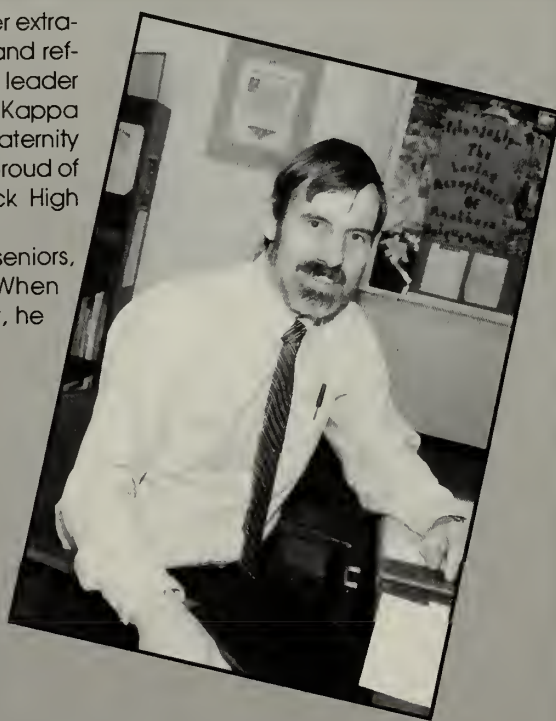

"I'm not a doctor who cures, but a person who administers a lot of first aid," says Mr. Jaworski in an effort to explain his counseling philosophy. He is not here to perform miracles, but to encourage, to support, and, most importantly, to listen. By listening and giving advice when needed, he, in a sense, administers first aid. He knows that he can't provide instant solutions, but he wants to help in every way he can.

In order to help, though, there needs to be a mutual trust and openness. Over the past years, "it has been getting harder to get students to talk openly," and this makes his job more difficult. However, he keeps trying because he wants everyone to have the opportunity to talk to someone who can help. Among other extra-curricular activities such as playing and refereeing basketball, Mr. Jaworski is a leader in the newly-developed fraternity, Kappa Tau Gamma. He is involved on the fraternity because he wants "students to feel proud of being a member of Bishop Fenwick High School."

Mr. Jaworski presently counsels seniors, but has also counseled juniors. When asked which year was more difficult, he replies "I think they both are because each year has many difficult questions and pressures that have to be addressed." Periodically he has questioned his job here, but always the spirit, the people, and his commitment to religion bring him back "home". Mr. Jaworski enjoys his occupation because he truly wants the students to appreciate themselves. "All students need a place to go, not only in school but in life, where they are not judged but are listened to because they are people who deserve respect."

Proverb

Although Mrs. Patch seems like a traditional English teacher, those students who have been in her English II or English III classes may not quite agree. Mrs. Patch brings a special art into the classroom — the art of speech and drama.

Mrs. Patch did not always plan on becoming a teacher. It was not until her senior year at The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. that she fell into a theatre teaching course and consequently loved it. She has, however, always been interested in acting. Her career in drama began in the third grade with a neighborhood production of Cinderella. She was actively involved with theatre in high school and chose drama as her major in college. During her five years in Washington, she was able to do much stage work as well as some film work.

In 1983, Mrs. Patch found herself an English teacher at Bishop Fenwick High School. What made her come to Fenwick? "We were working in Maryland at the time. Fenwick needed Mr. Patch to start a music program, and Mr. LeDuc was nice enough to hire me also . . . kind of a package deal," Mrs. Patch laughs. When asked if she enjoys working with her husband, she replies, "Oh, sure. We were working together when we met. I like knowing some of the same people. And we don't actually work together. Teaching is a very individual job."

Although she teaches English, not acting, Mrs. Patch seems to make the ordinary classroom exercises into interesting activities because of her use of drama techniques. She brings plays like A Midsummer Night's Dream to life by setting up a mini-stage at the back of the classroom. She is also famous for her Patch's Court where students defend their thesis statements. Things like this are what make Mrs. Patch and her classes unique.

Mrs. Patch, although always involved with previous Fenwick stage productions, this year has taken on the additional responsibility of directing her own production of Fools. "I've enjoyed it, but it's a lot of work, teaching and directing. I don't know how Mr. Sousa does it every year."

As for any future goals, someday Mrs. Patch would like to get back on the stage. But for now she is perfectly satisfied with her creative incorporation of the theatre into her classroom. "I stay here because it's Fenwick, and I think Fenwick is a very special place."

Months after his return from a summer in Japan, Mr. Edward Kawczynski still fondly remembers his experiences there. He recalls pleasant memories like the beautiful countryside and the friendly people as well as unpleasant memories of over-population and air pollution.

Mr. K has been interested in the Orient since high school. He took courses in the history of Japan and China in both high school and college. Before his recent trip, which was a fellowship grant to study the relationship between religion and politics in Japan, Mr. K had studied at Sophia University in Tokyo for his master's degree. This recent trip was achieved through a great deal of hard work and planning on Mr. K's part. Many of his memories are about the surprising role of Japanese women. He says, "Japan is mostly a man's world with the women serving them." This situation is changing now but hasn't changed much since his first trip to Japan sixteen years ago. After this last visit to Japan and other extensive traveling this year, he says, "I probably won't be going back to Japan for a while, but if I do, I'd like to go to the southernmost island of Kyushu."

Besides his love for the Orient, Mr. K also has a natural love for his job. "If I didn't like it, I wouldn't do it." After graduating from Salem State College with both bachelor's and master's degrees, Mr. K has taught history at Fenwick for eighteen years. He says that he enjoys making an impact on young people's minds. He enjoys teaching more mature students because he can relate to them better. He thinks the social studies program at Fenwick is fully reaching out to the students. This curriculum has been developed through experimentation and student input. The only thing he would like to see changed would be that, "Asian/African become a requirement for sophomores."

Mr. K is fortunate to be able to combine his love for the Orient and his love for his job to become an enthusiastic and effective teacher.

Mr. Mark Hillner

Many college students change their minds several times before deciding on a career. Such is the case of Mr. Mark Hillner.

At first he hoped to go to veterinary school, but after much indecision, he ended up working on research projects involving viral genetics, where he says, "I would spend hours by myself in the lab, and it was very lonely and frustrating." Because of these experiences, Mr. Hillner knew that working in a laboratory was not what he wanted to do for the rest of his life. A graduate of the University of Lowell with a major in biochemistry, he says, "I have always been attracted to what makes living things function. I particularly enjoy trying to turn on people who have a negative attitude toward science." His love of science and his desire to work with people made teaching a natural choice of a new career. After receiving his certification from Salem State College, he came to Bishop Fenwick in 1978. He is happy to be teaching biology to freshmen and seniors and says, "I enjoy stimulating someone's curiosity about his natural surroundings."

As the coach of the girl's Varsity Basketball Team, Mr. Hillner finds much satisfaction in striving to be the best. However he adds, "It is extremely tiring coaching and teaching simultaneously during the winter." This year it is even more tiring because of his broken leg. Coach Hillner is considered serious, intense, and caring, with a good sense of humor. His athletic interests outside of school include long distance running — the Boston Marathon in 1986 — skiing horse racing, and the New York Giants.

Teaching makes Mr. Hillner happy with himself. In the future he would like someday to develop science curricula. In addition, he notes, "I'd like to teach in a foreign country for a period of time." Right now he is happy at Fenwick and his students are the beneficiaries of his wise career decision.

The Science League — a chance to learn, participate in school projects, and compete against other schools. So far, the League's members have worked on a garden and set up an aquarium, as well as preparing for the monthly meets with other schools. The League is also planning to put up bird feeders and test new science software for use in classes. The competitive meets consist of three different events, each having no more than four participants. These events involve many diverse subjects; this year Fenwick prepared a Biology Trivia event. Among the most original events to take place this year was the building of an Egg Transport Device.

The Science League has grown tremendously over the past four years. It has evolved from a handful of volunteers that met a few days before an event into a set team that meets regularly every Thursday. Many of the new members this year are freshmen, a fact which promises that the Science League will continue to expand in the years to come. This success is largely due to the efforts of Mrs. Julia Velonis, Mrs. Mary Ellen Comeau, and Mrs. Ernestine Perrin, who all have the thanks and appreciation of the entire League.

A Jaunt to England

Last December, eight Fenwick students and one teacher left the United States behind to ring in the new year London style. The group, headed by Mr. Edward Kawczynski, spent ten soggy days exploring London's "cultural" offerings. Among the highlights were the Tower of London, the British Museum, Stratford-on-Avon, Oxford St., Soho, the "Australians", and, of course, the Hind. Three theatre performances were included in the tour: a sci-tech musical, a situation comedy, and a command performance of Twelfth Night by the Royal Shakespearean Theatre Company. During free time, when the students weren't suffering the ill-effects of bad hotel food, they could usually be found scouring the heart of London's shopping district for good buys to bring back home. While the students shopped, Mr. K. researched London pubs for just the right atmosphere. In spite of the inclement weather, everyone had a good time welcoming in 1988 in London.

Miss Majella Sheehan is both a student and a teacher. During the past nine years, she has taught students in elementary school and high school. Recently she went back to school herself and enrolled in a program to earn her master's degree in Spanish. This program through California State University of Sacramento has taken her to Spain this past summer, will enable her to study in Peru next summer, and the following year will take her to Mexico.

Although she has also taught religion courses, Miss Sheehan is primarily involved in teaching Spanish which she enjoys. By explaining the cultural differences and similarities between the United States and Spanish-speaking countries, she holds the interest of her students in the language. In addition she likes to keep her students up-to-date with current events in Spanish-speaking countries. She says, "I want the students to be aware of how important a foreign language can be. By having a better understanding of different cultures, by being open to them, these students may grow up to be peace-makers." Miss Sheehan is very happy with her career choice and notes, "The kids make the job. I love to see them get excited about learning."

This spring she and other members of the Foreign Language Department will lead a group of students on a trip to Spain. Miss Sheehan looks forward to sharing this experience with the students. She feels this trip will broaden the students' understanding of the Spanish culture, people, and language. "If this trip goes well, I hope it will become an annual event."

When asked what she will do when she receives her master's degree, she replies with a smile, "You never know what the future brings." At the moment her time is consumed with writing papers and studying for exams herself. She must also find time to correct papers and make up exams for her students. Miss Sheehan is a busy lady on both sides of the desk.

For two years, students at Fenwick have been aware of a human dynamo rushing through the halls between classrooms, the chapel, and the Campus Ministry office. This energetic woman is Sr. Marie McDonald who teaches four classes and works in Campus Ministry along with Fr. Jim and Ms. Elizabeth Sullivan. In addition to her duties at Fenwick, Sr. Marie finds time to play racquetball, watch spectator sports, and "get in touch with nature" by biking, mountain climbing, and hiking.

After graduating from Salem State College, Sr. Marie entered the Sisters of Notre Dame. She then did graduate work in Religious Studies at Duquesne in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and at the University of San Francisco. Although she majored in history, she also took courses in English and religion. She enjoys teaching, and says the best thing about it is "what you can learn from your students." It is also satisfying for a teacher to "see things come together for a student." Sr. Marie finds it particularly challenging to teach religion because of the chance to get involved in people's lives and because the teacher must put her own values and beliefs on the line.

Before coming to Fenwick, Sr. Marie had been involved in Campus Ministry for five years at the University of Maine and Boston University. Campus Ministry involves activities and projects such as counseling, chaplain duties, social outreach programs, retreats, instructing new Catholics and those who wish to become Catholics, and even organizing spaghetti suppers. In short "you do a little of everything." Obviously this is not a field for someone who is low on energy. The only dissatisfaction that she has with her job at Fenwick is that "I never have time to do all the things I want to do."

Although Sr. Marie now realizes that she will never achieve her childhood ambition of playing for the Boston Red Sox, she does have plans for the future. Eventually she would like to work with "people shut out by the system," such as the elderly, homeless, and immigrants. In the meantime Sr. Marie will continue to do "a little of everything" at Fenwick.

"I always try to give 100%" says Sr. Joseph Leo Pietrowski, better known as Sr. Joe. As we well realize, Sr. Joe is very much a part of the Fenwick family. She can always be seen at all Fenwick sporting events, often selling tickets. She is also head of the Mathematics Department and works at Bingo here on Monday nights. In regard to Bingo, Sr. Joe says, "I can remember that within ten minutes of my arrival at Fenwick, Sr. M.L. had me signed up to do Bingo." Since then Sr. Joe has learned to say "No" — but only after a slight struggle. Sr. Joe used to say "Yes" to anyone who asked her to do something new, but the situation got to the point where she felt that she "was on a merry-go-round and had to stop for a minute and take stock of things," and remind herself that she can't do and isn't expected to do everything.

Sr. Joe has been teaching all her life and knew in the second grade that she wanted to be a nun. However she didn't know that she wanted to be a Dominican until she fell in love with their white habits. She went into teaching because she "felt that teaching and being a nun went together well." Having taught all over the country and particularly in Chicago for many years, Sr. Joe came to Fenwick in 1980 because she "wanted to be on the East Coast." When asked if she had any dreams for the Math Department's future, she says, "I would like to see students better prepared for high school math and a two-year Algebra 1 course for some students." Sr. Joe finds it funny and rewarding when she sees former students who remember the little puns she uses to recall algebraic rules. For example, one of her present students may come back in ten years and say, "Remember when we used the Glad Zip Lock bag ad that said blue and yellow make green for an intersection rule?" Overall, she is "very pleased with the math curriculum and the teachers in the department."

Sr. Joe also feels that in regard to her involvement with the Athletic Department, "Mr. McHugh is a major part of why I'm involved. I feel it is a small way to say thank you for all the help he has given me." Obviously Sr. Joe is the number one sports fan of the Fenwick family and happy to be here. And we are all very happy to have 100% of her energy and enthusiasm.

Math Club Can Solve All Your Problems

The Bishop Fenwick math club, now in its third year, is devoted to creating a sense of challenge and competition to all math-oriented students. Led by the advisor, Mrs. Marianne Russo, the math club has expanded each year. If all goes well next year, there will be a banquet for the members of the math club.

The math club is divided into three groups: the juniors and seniors (combined), the sophomores, and the freshmen. Their job is to compete in written contests in such areas as Algebra II, Analysis, and Trigonometry for the juniors and seniors, Geometry for the sophomores, and Algebra I for the freshmen. They compete in six written contests per year, and the results are compared with two hundred schools nationally, all affiliated with the American Scholastic Mathematical Association. At the end of the year, a certificate is sent to the top scorer in the school. So far this year the top scorer is Matthew Armitage, closely followed by Dennis Cormier.

The Bishop Fenwick math club gives the opportunity to students who excel in mathematics to challenge their abilities, improve their skills, and have fun at the same time.

Brother Fred is truly a Renaissance man with activities ranging from reading the New Testament in Greek to catching the latest film at the Nickelodeon. He embraces the best of both the ancient and modern worlds.

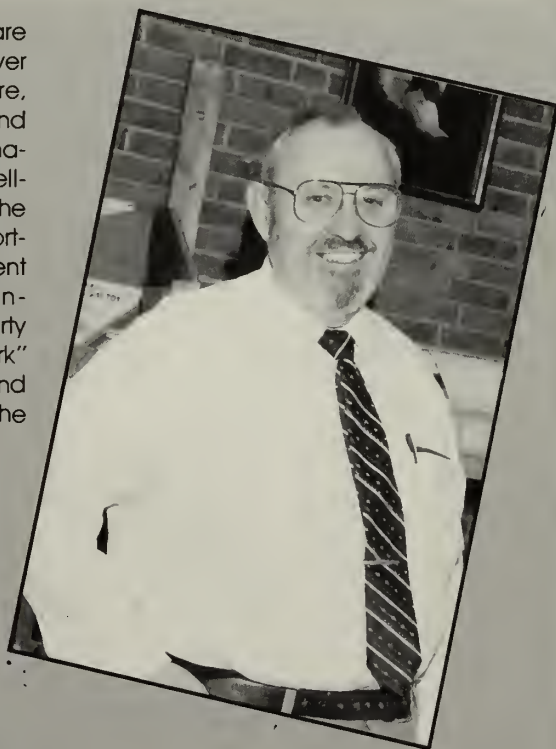

In addition to a B.A. in Latin and Greek and a Masters in Library Science from Catholic University in Washington, D.C., Brother Fred has studied at Oxford University in England, Columbia University in New York City, and Trinity College in Hartford. When he first came to Fenwick, the library consisted of only one room — the current reference room. His main task was to expand the library for evaluation in 1982. The library needed considerable improvement to meet the growing number of students. With his hard-working associate, Sr. Nancy O'Reilly, Brother Fred transformed the library into the excellent facility it is today.

What Brother Fred enjoys most about being a librarian is the opportunity to help people. He says, "I enjoy bringing people together with the information and books needed to do their work." He calls this being an "information broker." When asked what makes the Fenwick library different from other school libraries, he states that he feels the materials are really used here. Some other libraries are more like museums; some books never come off the shelves. He is glad that here, "People aren't afraid to ask for help, and teachers send students here for information." The fact that our library is so well-used allows it to continue to grow. The administration has always been supportive of the library which has an excellent budget to permit expansion. Unfortunately, with every job comes the dirty work. In the library it is "drudgery work" such as filing cards, shelving books, and paperwork. Brother Fred recognizes the necessity of these tasks but would much prefer helping and working with people.

In his free time Brother Fred enjoys reading, listening to classical music, and watching movies in addition to his Saturday morning meetings to read Greek. Traveling is a way to, "get away and see things." Having taught in England for four years, he has had the opportunity to travel extensively in Europe and the Holy Land. Fenwick is fortunate to have a teacher who is as comfortable with computers and VCRs as he is with Latin and Greek.

Mr. Anthony Juliano

Most Fenwick students know Mr. Anthony Juliano as either a teacher, coach, deacon, or bus driver. However, these are only his school activities; he is an equally busy man in his community.

The Boston College political science major never intended to teach or work with computers until he left the army with no job and found himself working for Honeywell. After eighteen years in the business world, Mr. Juliano does not find that being a teacher now is at all stressful. He feels that Fenwick is a very special place, and comparing it to any public school he says, "There is a lot more caring shown by both faculty and students than you would find at any public high school." At Fenwick, "The teachers are more dedicated and the students are more responsible." He enjoys being with the students at Fenwick and if he were given a choice, he would choose to teach computer courses rather than do anything else.

As coach of Varsity Volleyball, Freshman Baseball, Powder-puff Football and assistant coach of Winter Track, how does "Spike" have time to relax? Well, he feels that, "Coaching is a good outlet for any stressful situations that may come up during the day." And if the day goes well, he still enjoys coaching and says, "At my age working around kids keeps me young."

In spite of all the school activities in which Mr. Juliano is involved, he still finds the time and energy to put hard work into his community. As chairman of the Peabody Parks and Recreation Commission, he advises the mayor about activities and also sets an annual budget. He is in demand as a guest speaker for local cable sports programs as well as for local radio stations. As a deacon Mr. Juliano is actively involved in his church community. He assists at Mass at St. Adelaide's and Our Lady of Fatima, visits the sick, distributes communion to shut-ins, and in some cases, even marries or baptizes people. Besides being a teacher, coach, and deacon, Mr. Juliano has one other demanding position. He is the father of four children, the grandfather of one, and the husband of his wife Carolyn. He is as devoted to his community as he is to his family and his job, and he does all these things because, "I enjoy it!"

Physical Education

Mr. Patrick Veilleux

Show Off. Kristen Hall looks on admiringly as Kenneth Nagy takes a shot.

Miss Ellen McGrail is an example of a person who has a perfect match of interest and job. Always interested in teaching physical education, she has reached her goal at Bishop Fenwick. Miss McGrail attended Springfield College where she majored in physical education. After graduating in 1984, she began to teach here later the same year. She has taught both physical education and typing, but she prefers teaching physical education. Teaching health and physical education now, she admits, "health and physical education are so different, and health is more interesting."

In addition to her teaching duties, Miss McGrail is also the Varsity Field Hockey coach here. She played this sport in college and continues to play it now in the Bay State Games. This makes her the ideal person to coach our field hockey team. The 1987 season ended when the Fenwick team made the State Tournament. When asked whether she prefers teaching or coaching, Miss McGrail replies, "I love to coach, and I also love to teach. It is not hard to be both a coach and a teacher at Bishop Fenwick because the students are so great."

Of the changes she would like to see in the physical education program, the main one is this. "I would like to see everyone involved in physical education, including the juniors and seniors." On a personal basis, Miss McGrail is constantly adding to her expertise. She works with the Red Cross taking courses in water safety and CPR. In the future, she might like to teach elementary school physical education because she likes working with young children. She would be even more happy if her "field hockey team could get past the first round of the State Tournament," she says in jest. Summing up her years at Fenwick she adds, "I couldn't have done anything without the help of Mr. Pat Veilleux or Mr. James McHugh."

Teaching at Fenwick is just one stop on a career path for Mr. Keith Michael Phelan. Ever since he was a small boy, he had been encouraged to become an artist of some sort because, he says "... I was good at it; it came naturally to me." A graduate of Salem High School, he painted the school's mascot, the witch, on the side of their field house. He is also a 1987 graduate of Massachusetts College of Art, where he received the Bachelor's of Fine Arts degree in graphic design. Some careers which have interested him in the past are architecture, fashion design, and advertising in which he plans eventually to become a graphic designer. Mr. Phelan never thought he would be a teacher. "No way. I was trained to be in advertising. I worked internships during school, but I just wasn't ready for the everyday Boston commute to work." Mr. Phelan continues, "one day I decided to teach, and I guess I got lucky; there was an opening at Fenwick in the Art Department."

Because he has been active in the church throughout his life and is now the minister of the youth group at St. Thomas Church, he says he liked being able to "teach the faith" at a Catholic high school. He has already participated in Fenwick retreats and is planning a "Teens Encounter Christ" weekend in the spring for the seniors and alumni to participate in together.

During his first year at Fenwick, Mr. Phelan has noticed some pluses and some minuses. "I see this Fenwick family in the seniors. I have noticed that they have accepted the community the most willingly. I seem to fit in very well with these people." Actually he says that he gets along very well with all his students, from the freshmen up. He says "I feel that it's easier for them to relate to me because I'm younger than the other teachers. I'm not the typical teacher; I'm very unpredictable." He sits in his chair, puts his feet up on the desk, and hums a line of a song that is coming from the radio. He sips at his 7-UP and continues. "Yes, I'm very different." Mr. Phelan wishes he could have a bigger classroom with a sink, but in the same breath, he squeezes in "some people feel that this is the best room in the school. It's so casual and comfortable."

He feels that a person is more important than the subject and he sees this attitude reflected in the Fenwick philosophy. Mr. Phelan adds "The positive reinforcement of a person is the key to being fulfilled. At Fenwick there is respect for everyone and everything here."

National Honor Society

The National Honor Society is an organization which recognizes students who demonstrate high standards of scholarship, leadership, and character. Candidates must be recommended for induction into the NHS and must maintain a 3.70 grade point average.

Service to the Fenwick community is one of the most important functions of the National Honor Society. The tutorial program for freshmen who are having academic difficulty is one such service project. NHS members donate their time during free periods and after school to lend a helping hand to the freshmen in need. The members also offer their services to the school as a whole whenever there is a need. NHS members have ushered at Parent — Teacher Night, and have served refreshments at the Christmas and Spring Concerts. In addition to these, the NHS has volunteered its services outside of Fenwick.

In October the NHS sponsored a Halloween party for the day care children at North Shore Catholic Charities. This gave the members a chance to serve the community and to give these children some special attention.

Whenever there is a need, the members of the National Honor Society, under the direction of Sr. Judith Nee, S.N.D., can always be found willing to offer their services.

Behind it All Student Council

The Student Activities' Council (SAC) is an essential part of the Fenwick community that has proven itself useful year after year. With great help from its president, Julie Day, and its advisor, Mrs. Kathleen Callahan, this council organized and coordinates school activities to provide an interesting social life, to build school spirit, and to encourage cultural and spiritual development. Keeping in mind these four functions, the SAC itself is not considered an exclusive group. Any student may attend meetings to share his or her ideas and to get involved firsthand. The members of the SAC display a commitment to make Fenwick something more than just another Catholic high school. The dedication and hard work of these members shows again that Bishop Fenwick is a step ahead of other schools.

Supporters of Sports

Athletic Committee

Under the guidance of Mr. Robert Tierney and Chairperson Catherine Canniffe, the Athletic Committee worked hard this year to strengthen the students' support of sports in our school. The members of this committee successfully planned Spirit Week and the Pep Rally; both of these activities were revived by the Athletic Committee last year. One of the contributions of this group which everyone appreciates is the scheduling of the buses to take students to various away games. Those who have caught the Fenwick spirit have this committee to thank.

Super School Spirit

A tradition continued this year at Fenwick with Spirit Week, organized by Athletic Committee Chairperson Catherine Caniffe. The Sunday before the Thanksgiving Eve game, members of each class decorated the school cafeteria. Each class had its theme and strove to express originality and enthusiasm. A rally was held Wednesday, the day of the game, with each class presenting a skit to the student body. This year the Senior Class was judged the winner of both the Best Decorating Award and the Best Skit Award for their Flintstones-based theme of "Fenrock."

The school as a whole cheered on the football players, especially the seniors who were playing their final game for Fenwick. We also applauded the other fall teams and recognized their senior members. During this year's Spirit Week, Fenwick really let its Crusader spirit shine.

Dance Steps Social Committee

Students at Bishop Fenwick were treated to a fun-filled year thanks to the dedication of the Social Committee whose members worked diligently to make the year a social success. Many hours were spent creating dance themes and decorating the cafeteria. The committee can take credit for the huge successes of the Halloween Dance, the Christmas Cotillion, the Valentine Dance, and the Freshman-Sophomore Semi-Formal. No school would be complete without a Social Committee, and thanks to our committee's efforts, the social scene at Fenwick is outstanding.

Following in His Footsteps

Religious Committee

The Religious Committee advertises its activities with the slogan, "Helping others and having fun doing it." Judging by the enthusiastic response to their programs there must be hundreds of Fenwick students having fun this year. This committee works hard to translate the principles learned in formal religion classes into meaningful action.

Fenwick students reach out to diverse groups in the larger community. Four times a year, members of the Religious Committee take an after school trip to Haven From Hunger to prepare and serve a meal for 50 to 60 hungry people in Peabody. At Halloween students dress up in costumes and deliver candy to patients at North Shore Children's Hospital. The entire school is involved in the Thanksgiving Canned Food Drive which provides thousands of canned goods to the Warwick House in Roxbury and the Crombie Street Church in Salem. At Christmas, the names of 200 children and some immigrant adults are given to homerooms, individual students and faculty to "adopt". These people give Christmas gifts to their adopted friend — a special moment for the donor and the recipient whose Christmas is now more meaningful. In addition, last year 200 Fenwick students participated in the Greater Boston Walk for Hunger and raised money from sponsors to help wipe out hunger in the Boston area.

Within the school, the committee works with Ms. Elizabeth Sullivan to plan penance services, school liturgies and other events. At Fenwick it is easy to translate faith into action because of the opportunities offered by the Religious Committee.

Stepping Out In Style Cultural Committee

The Cultural Committee is small in number but great in influence on the Fenwick campus. Its purpose is to interest a diverse group of students in activities beyond the scope of sports or other traditional extracurricular events. Under the director of Mrs. Nancy Patch, this year the committee has planned a theater trip, a talent show, and a dance. In January a delighted group of students travelled to Boston to laugh hilariously at a long-running comedy: Shear Madness. The dreary days of March were brightened by the bright colors and loud music of students attending the New Wave Dance. This was an unusual event because the music was selected by the committee and Sheri Kelley and Hester Tinti acted as the D.J.s.

The response to plans for a talent show has been enthusiastic especially from the musicians in the school. In addition, the Cultural Committee hopes to sponsor a trip to the Museum of Fine Arts in the spring.

All the students appreciate the work of this committee because it opens doors and provides easy access to activities that otherwise would be difficult to attend.

Steps of Brotherhood

Kappa Tau Gamma

This year was the first full year of the new boys' fraternity, Kappa Tau Gamma. Although there had been attempts in the past to organize such a group, this marks the first successful all male service organization at Fenwick.

Kappa Tau Gamma represents a statement of the Greek philosopher Archimedes which says: "Give me a place to stand and I can move the earth." This fraternity has many goals: the promotion of social responsibility, brotherhood, academic achievement, and service to the school community. At Fenwick this group is unique because it is an all male group that is non-athletic and is open to all boys in the school.

Rush Week brought the total number of members from the original 30 to well over 50. Under the guidance of Mr. Jaworski, Mr. Tierney, Mr. Sacco, Fr. Jim, and Mr. Gundrum, the council plans and directs activities. Members of the council include seniors Matthew Pinardi, Dennis Doherty, Brendan Clifford, Kevin Wood, and James LeDuc. Juniors John Condon and Michael Sobezenski, sophomores Jay Juffre and Parry Comeau and the seniors meet weekly to make plans for Kappa Tau Gamma.

During its first year, the fraternity has sponsored the spring "Clean Up," helped with Freshman Orientation, started a bowling league and sponsored other recreational activities. Members of the fraternity are very much aware of the fact that the primary purpose of the organization is to encourage all male students to take advantage of everything Fenwick has to offer.

Some Notes of Interest

Music Department

Since the beginning of the Music Department in 1982, there has been a steady growth of extracurricular opportunities in a variety of musical areas. The school's main performance groups consist of the Concert Band, Concert Choir, the Chorale and the Chorus which are responsible for two major concerts annually. The Christmas Concert and the Spring Concert have earned a considerable reputation throughout the school, involving more students that ever before. The Concert Choir also takes on the added task of making local nursing home visits to bring Yuletide melodies to the elderly. Now in its second year, the music ministry program has continued to add the dimension of song to the school's religious events. This year the addition of a fall drama production spurred the creation of an original musical score, composed and performed by a talented, if not modest, member of the senior class.

On With the Show! Drama Club

The Bishop Fenwick Drama Club, founded in 1975, has grown in stature and prestige since that time. Under the direction and guidance of their director, Mr. Robert Sousa, and their music director, Mr. Jeffrey Patch, the members of the club have worked long hours to achieve new standards of excellence, but have enjoyed themselves in the process. Both the performers and the members of the stage crew realize that a commitment to the Drama Club involves a great deal of time and much work. But the payoff of thunderous applause filling the Fenwick auditorium after each night's performance seems to make it all worthwhile.

The Drama Club's most recent credits include My Fair Lady and Hello Dolly with Mr. Sousa, and Neil Simon's hit comedy Fools, which heralded the directorial debut of Mrs. Nancy Patch, and was the second fall production ever attempted at Fenwick. With Mrs. Patch's help, the Drama Club hopes to make the fall show as much a tradition as the spring musical has become over the years.

This year's spring musical is Fiddler on the Roof. The cast, as usual, is a compilation of the best talent Fenwick has to offer, including veterans like Matthew Mamick (Tevye), Hester Tinti (Golda), Heidi O'Connell (Hodel), and Meredith Grenier (Treitel). The rest of the cast, veterans also, fill the remaining roles.

The 1987-88 Drama Club hopes that this production meets with as much success as previous performances, and appreciates all of the support it has received. On with the show!

Stepping Out On Stage

Fools, the comedy hit by Neil Simon, was the first fall play by the Bishop Fenwick Drama Club in four years. Lead roles were played by Christopher Jarzynka, Kristine O'Malley, James Pappas, and Hester Tinti. Sophomore Kristine O'Malley made her acting debut as Sophia Zubritzky, around whom the plot revolves. The story of a Russian village where the citizens are cursed with life-long stupidity is hilariously funny. On both nights of production, December 4 and 5, the crowd applauded the happily united hero and heroine and vigorously booed the villain, Count Yousekevitch, played by Stephen Boudreault. The sets, costumes, and specially composed music all added to the considerable acting talents of the members of the Drama Club.

Following the Steps of Kings

Chess Club

Chess is the game of kings, prized by nobility in the Middle Ages and popular ever since. It is a highly stimulating game that combines skill and experience with insight and intuition. It teaches strategy, as the player learns to judge and to react to the opponent. The skill of knowing when to use the offensive or resort to a strategic withdrawal and the ability to sacrifice a piece in order to obtain something more valuable are skills applicable to everyday life as well as to the game of chess.

At Bishop Fenwick, the Chess Club has been active for two years. The aim of the club is to promote interest in the game and spread its enjoyment by instructing new players. New members of all skill levels are welcome. Mr. Kevin McCarthy, the advisor, urges all interested students to come to a meeting to make new friends and to sharpen their technique.

Producing A Step Ahead Yearbook

Nothing worthwhile comes without hard work; this book is no exception. The editors, advisors, and staff of the 1988 Lance have labored for long hours, photographing, writing, cropping, typing, selling ads, and monitoring the seemingly endless details that are crucial to producing the best. Truly dedicated, these people could be found in the yearbook room after school, during frees, on weekends, and over vacations steadily moving toward the completion of this excellent yearbook.

Led by Editor-in-Chief Maura Moran and guided by Mrs. Juffre and Mrs. Hawke, the staff worked diligently at an often hectic pace to meet deadlines. Photography Editor Kara Muise snapped pictures of everyone from underclassmen English students to senior sports stars. Layout Editors Jennifer Marsella and Patrick Kulakowski then created pleasing page designs that incorporated the most interesting of the shots. Literary Editor Tricia Shea captioned every picture with imagination, wrote articles, and even composed headlines.

Section Editors had the enormous responsibility of ensuring that all parts of each page were completed. They kept a record of developed pictures and those which still needed to be taken, which layouts had to be changed, to whom articles were assigned, as well as supervising headlines, artwork, and captions. In addition, Senior Section Editor Beth Lehman offered persistent reminders to seniors about portraits, collected baby pictures, and edited quotes and ambitions as fast as Production Editor Meredith Grenier could type them. Sports Editor Kara Barbeau kept track of the teams' records, season highlights and awards, giving superior coverage to all teams. Sharyn Ayers brought an entirely new approach to the Academics Section with her teacher interview idea, a concept that introduces students to other sides of a person seen mainly in the classroom. In the Activities Section, William Juffre captured the essence of Fenwick's lighter side with his excellent coverage of extracurricular activities and social events. Meanwhile, Business Editor Brendan Clifford and his team sought ads to keep the book affordable.

Four years. It's hard to believe that so much could have occurred in such a short time. Choosing to come to Fenwick as freshmen, we had no idea what our decision would entail — the friendships we would make, the courses we would struggle through, the sports teams we would join. Least of all did we expect the atmosphere of Fenwick, that special sense of caring that permeates the campus.

It was at Fenwick that we first discovered the wonderful feeling of belonging. No matter how different we all were, each of us found people who were like ourselves. Our friendships with those people have deepened throughout the years here. Fenwick also introduced us to the term "commitment," as we experienced the dedication of teachers, coaches, and the administrative faculty.

Will we remember, years from now, how we came together as a class and as a school, in classrooms, on the field, at plays and dances? As Editor of the yearbook, I have had the responsibility — and the honor — of recording our lives at Fenwick, capturing the spirit of our school in the pictures and articles published in this book. All who worked on it know the amount of time and energy that has been invested in these memories, how difficult it has been to narrow four years' worth of experiences into a relatively few pages. We are proud of our success, and are confident that A Step Ahead will help you keep your memories of Fenwick alive after graduation, and beyond.

A Step Ahead of the Competition

How many times has one heard in the Fenwick gym, playing fields, or classrooms that "all it takes is all you've got"? Motivated by these words, Coach Jack Farley's Cross Country Team has completed another great season.

With an outstanding record of 11-1, the Lady Crusaders finished second in both the Catholic Central League and in Division Two East. Playing a major role in the team's success were captains Kathleen Jenkins, Rene Cave, Stefani Blais, and Shannon Fletcher. Kathleen Jenkins also won the Team Award along with Shannon Fletcher who took the MVP.

A memorable moment for these girls was qualifying for the All-State. This accomplishment took the team on their first overnighter to Northfield, Massachusetts where the temperature on the starting line was actually -7 degrees! Although they may have ended their season with a chill, Mr. Farley is certain that the team has a promising future.

The boys' team (7-2) finished third in the Catholic Central League and fifth in Division Three East. Senior Captains Sean Dunleavy, Patrick Foss, and Scott Sirois led the Crusaders through a terrific season. For the third year in a row, Scott Sirois received the MVP and was named a CCL All-Star. He then proceeded to qualify for the All States. Despite losing ten seniors, Coach Farley has great expectations for the 1988 team which will include the Team Award winner Christopher Hallinan.

In the end both the boys' and girls' teams finished their seasons a step ahead of the competition.

Fenwick Swim Team Completes Season Undefeated

Usually when a sports contingent can boast only one senior, the consensus points toward the cliché — a rebuilding year. The swim team proved that statement wrong with no problem. The team, first in its league, compiled a 6-0 record and also finished first in the Conference Meet, 200 points ahead of runner-up Somerville.

A talented group of freshmen added greatly to the team's record — setting performances. Leading this group were Barbara Shaughnessy, Joanna DeLuca, Tracey Grant, and Christine Monahan. Sophomores Erin Dolan and Christina Sampsonis were outstanding performers. Juniors Kyle Standring, Lisa Tortolano, Leya Abernathy, Elizabeth Sordillo, Andrea Delorie, and Beth Louzon contributed to the team's fine record. Senior captain Kim Murtagh, the MVP, was always there to make sure the team spirit never died.

Crusaders Advance to Division One Tournament

The Bishop Fenwick field hockey team had an excellent year, completing the season with a 7-4-7 record and finishing second in the Greater Boston League. The Crusaders also ended the season by qualifying for the first round of the state tournament.

The girls could not have had such a satisfying season without the help of Coach Ellen McGrail and the efforts of senior Co-Captains Rose Vitale and Tricia Santry. Vitale and Santry, along with teammates Tricia Twomey, Kristen Amico, and Lori Evans, were elected to the Greater Boston All-Star Team.

The Crusaders eventually lost 1-0 to Weston in the Division One State Tournament in double overtime. This low-scoring game was a result of the strong defense led by Lori Evans, Kristen Dombrowski, Tricia Santry, Meghan Putney, and Kate Wilson. Goal keeper Tricia Twomey also gave an excellent effort, according to Coach McGrail.

At the fall banquet, Rose Vitale and Kristen Amico were named the Most Valuable Players, the Team Award went to Tricia Santry, and the Coach's Award was presented to Tricia Twomey. Junior Lori Evans was named Most Improved and was elected as a Tri-Captain for next year along with Kristen Amico and Kristen Dombrowski.

In the end, the Crusaders proved their ability to remain a successful team even after a rebuilding year.

Record-breaking Season Ends in Disappointment

The 1987-88 boys' soccer team and coach, Scott Baldwin experienced an outstanding record-breaking season. Among its highlights were a seven game winning streak, seven shut-outs, and a 3-0 win over Swampscott in the team's first-ever State Tournament game.

Participating in the Tournament was not the only new experience the soccer team enjoyed this season. The team set several records including: most wins in a season (14), most goals scored in a season (105), and least goals scored against in a season (20). Record breaking accomplishments were also achieved by Dennis Cormier, who scored 29 goals, and by John Mahoney, who made 19 assists.

Overall the team worked together smoothly, aided by the leadership of Coach Baldwin and tri-captains John Mahoney, Sean Hallinan and Dennis Cormier. The Crusaders achieved a final record of 14-6, including a 1-1 Tournament record. Unfortunately post-season play was cut short when the boys were defeated by East Boston in their second Tournament game.

Though all the team members contributed to the exceptional season, certain players were recognized for their outstanding efforts. Captain Dennis Cormier was named MVP and both he and Captain John Mahoney were named Best Offensive Players. Gary Deschenes and William Sayles accepted the awards for Best Defensive Players and Brian Crowell was named Most Improved. In addition, outstanding mid-fielder Glenn Anderson was recognized as Tournament MVP.

Feet, Heads, and Heart

Twelve wins, three losses, and a tie is a record which represents the Fenwick Girls' Soccer Team. Led by senior captains Roxanne Byrne, Lisa McGloin, and Marlene Myslinski, the team went undefeated in the Catholic North League, thereby becoming Catholic North champions. Other seniors Elena Ciampa, Rebecca Hale, Kathleen Haviland, Amy Nickerson, Alyssa Riley, Christine Tondreault, and Laura Truesdale all helped to characterize the season with spirited play. For the first time in Fenwick's soccer history, the girls entered the State Tournament, seeded fifth in Division 1.

Many well deserved awards were presented at the Fall Sports Banquet. Junior Kelly Wolff was awarded the team and league MVP. Maryanne Gaudet was named the team MVP as well. Roxanne Byrne was the Best Defensive Player, and Marlene Myslinski received the award for Best Offensive Player. Kathleen Haviland picked up the Coach's Award, and Lisa McGloin received the Team Award. Two teammates were considered Most Improved — Alyssa Riley and Kristen Paolucci.

The 1987 season ended appropriately when five girls were named to the All Star Team: Roxanne Byrne, Maryanne Gaudet, Lisa McGloin, Marlene Myslinski, and Kelly Wolff. Lady Crusaders Defeat Matignon for the First Time

For the Fenwick volleyball team the 1987 season seemed to be marked by injuries. Nevertheless, the Crusaders, led by Coach Anthony Juliano, fought back to win their last three games of the season. It has been in games such as these that the Lady Crusaders displayed their talent and determination.

Led by Tri-Captains Erin Flynn, Michelle Berube, and Ellen Wythe, the girls were able to win twice as many games as they did last year. Coach Juliano commented that "the high point of the season came when, for the first time ever, a Fenwick volleyball team defeated the more powerful Matignon team twice in a season." Those of us who attended this game witnessed first-hand the excitement that the Lady Crusaders never fail to generate.

The team ended its 8-10 season appropriately with a banquet at which the following athletes were recognized: Jennifer Neville was named the Most Valuable Offensive Player, and Erin Flynn was named the most Valuable Defensive Player. Seniors Michelle Berube and Ellen Wythe split the Coach's Award, and Lisa Scioli received the award for being the Most Improved.

Crusaders Benefit from Fourteen Senior Members

When the 1987 football season began both the coach and the team wondered who was going to take the place of graduated quarterback Sean McMillan. This question was answered in the game against Cardinal Spellman when junior Christopher Hoffman connected on 15 of 26 passes to lead the team to its first win (20-6) over Spellman in 9 years. Hoffman's talent was recognized at the end-of-the-year banquet when he was selected as the Most Valuable Offensive Player. He completed the season with 1,280 yards and 14 touchdowns.

However, the team's 7-3 record could not have been achieved by Hoffman's efforts alone. For example, senior Tri-Captain Darren Soucy was a valuable offensive player and also an anchor of the Crusader's defensive line. Because of his efforts, Soucy was awarded the game ball against Spellman and was presented with the Most Valuable Player Trophy. The Crusaders were also captained by Thomas McMillan and Brendan Clifford who received the Best Offensive Lineman and Best Defensive Lineman Awards, respectively. Clifford also received the Sal Tripoli Award, which honored his performance in the annual Thanksgiving game against St. Mary's.

Also honored at the Pigskin Club's banquet were juniors Mark Duchane and Duane Martin who split the Most Valuable Defensive Player Award. Junior John Diorio was named Best Offensive Back while Michael Cranney, also a junior, was named Best Defensive Back. Senior kicker Kevin Donnelly received the Coach's Award and Sean Broderick was honored as the Unsung Hero. Finally the prestigious Ralph Osgood Award was presented to senior Frank Martin.

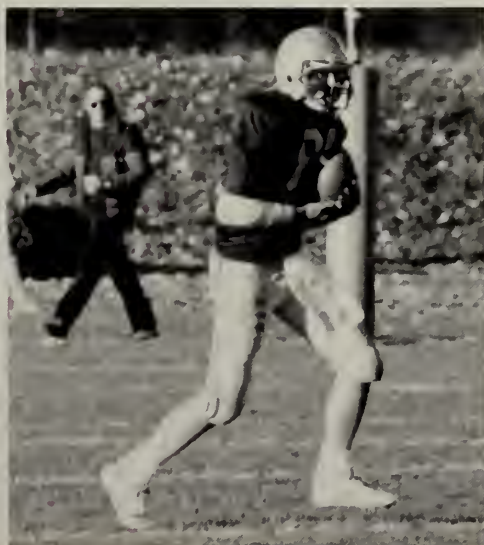

Fenwick coach James Lyons attributed the successful season to the team's fourteen senior members. "The seniors did a real great job for us," said Lyons. "This team should have been number one. It was definitely good enough to win all its games. If the coach had made a couple of adjustments at the right time we probably would have been undefeated."

Get Ready to Sparkle

The talented Fenwick football cheerleaders play an important part in the team's winning record. Under the able direction of Coach Robert Tierney and Co-captains, Kimberly O'Sullivan and Catherine Francis, the spirited cheerleaders strive for perfection in their routines.

During the season the girls lead the cheers and entertain the fans at every game. Practicing three evenings a week in preparation for Spirit Week, the cheerleaders choreographed a fast-paced dance routine for the pep rally. They also decorate the team's lockers and homes in order to motivate the players for the annual Thanksgiving day game against St. Mary's.

The hours of time and effort resulted in helping the team complete the season with a successful record. The football cheerleaders certainly know the formula for success: energy, dedication, and motivation. Look out — the girls are ready to sparkle!

Taking the First Step — Fenwick forms Boys' Swim Team

A definite highlight of Bishop Fenwick's 1987-88 sports program was the formation of a boys' swim team. The team, mostly composed of underclassmen, was coached by Ken Leawood and captained by Senior Matthew Earl. Since it was their first season, the swim team only had eight members. Considering they were competing against teams of 20-30 members, this small membership hurt their record. Nevertheless, in the North Sectional Championships, the boys were able to finish fifteenth out of approximately twenty teams and Matthew Earl placed first in the diving competition.

Season highlights for the boys included a Conference Meet in which William Callahan placed fourth in the 100 yard breaststroke. Also, Captain Matthew Earl placed first in the diving competition, setting both school and conference records. On February 26 and 27, Matthew Earl and Stephen Legro will finish their season by competing in the State Championships for diving and the 100 yard backstroke, respectively.

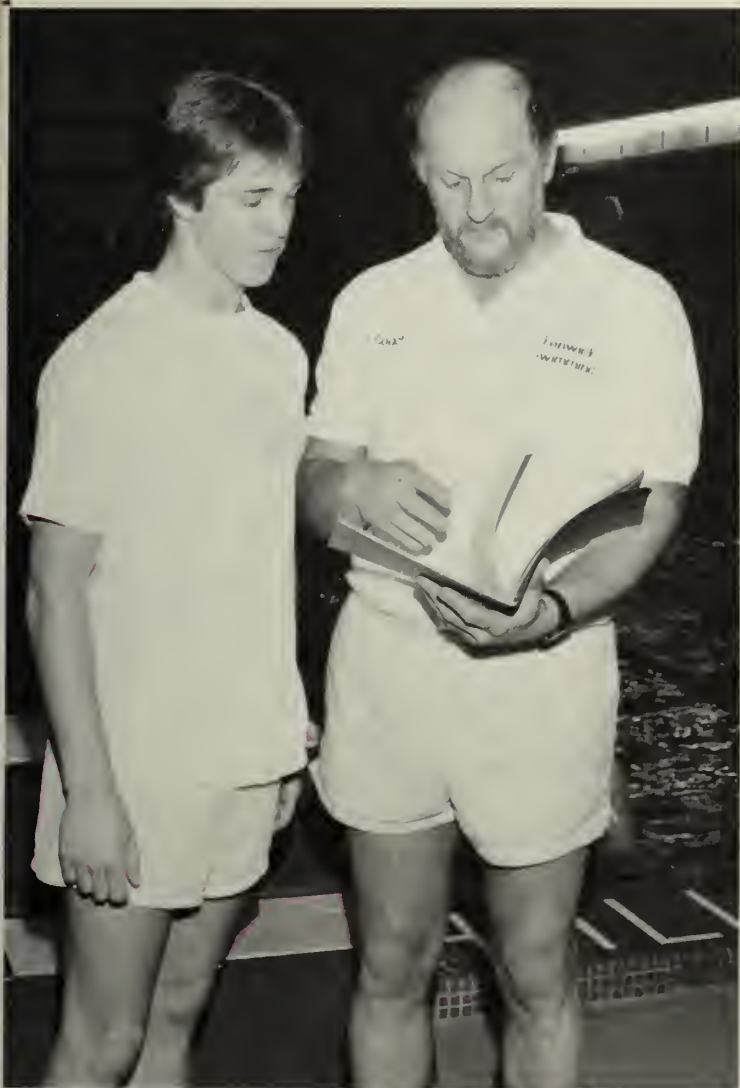

Since this was their first season, the boys set many records: Stephen Legro — 500 yard freestyle and 100 yard backstroke, William Callahan — 100 yard breaststroke, Matthew Earl — diving, Mark Dewan — 100 yard butterfly and 200 yard individual medley, Kevin Flatley — 50 yard freestyle. In the end, the example set by the boys' swim team will certainly be inspirational to other Fenwick athletes hoping to initiate new sports.

Hockey Team Learns Hard Lesson

The 1987-88 hockey season will not go down in Fenwick's hockey history as a great season in terms of wins. However, the team displayed many special qualities that were impressive to those who watched and supported the team. Self-discipline, hard work, and Fenwick pride were evident whenever the Crusaders took the ice. Coach Tierney said, "In my eighteen years of being associated with Fenwick hockey, this team has won my respect and admiration more than any other team." One does not have to be a hockey expert to understand that this year's team showed why high school sports are played.

The two games which drew the most interest were games against Peabody High School and St. John's Prep. Although Peabody won this year's Carlin Trophy, the Crusaders are already determined to get the trophy back next season.

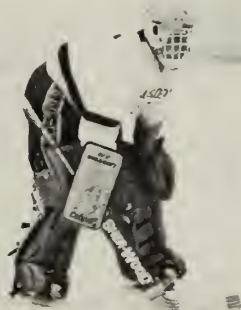

At the team's banquet awards were given to Peter Genest, Most Outstanding Player; Thomas Steeves, Best Offensive Player; Dennis Doherty, Coach's Award; Scott Keefe, Most Improved; Glen Cole, Team Award; Christopher Carmichael, Moore Memorial Award; Christopher Clement, Ken Mizioch Award; James Diminico, Carlin Game Award, and Erik Mansfield, McCarthy Memorial Award.

Lady Crusaders Finish Second in Catholic Central League

Finishing their season with an impressive record of 14-4, the Lady Crusaders are looking forward to the State Championship playoffs. In order to qualify for the states, the girls had to defeat some tough opponents, including defending Northeast Conference co-champions Salem High School and Swampscott High School. Significant awards such as these enabled the Crusaders to finish second in the Catholic Central League.

This year's team is young but strong. Sophomore Janina Marcinkowski is Fenwick's top scorer, averaging 15.8 points a game. Gina also set a sophomore scoring record with 29 points against Swampscott. Coach Mark Hillner feels that "Gina has improved 100% this year, and it is scary to think just how good she might be when she is a senior."

Also instrumental to the Crusaders' success were captain Lisa McGloin and sophomore Guadalupe Todd, who averaged 14.4 points a game. Todd and Marcinkowski ended their season appropriately by being selected to represent Fenwick in the All Star Game.

Basketball Season has Both Highs and Lows

The boys' basketball team may not have had a great year record-wise, but they had a wonderful time working together. Coach Patrick Veilleux said, "We worked hard all year regardless of the situation." He also noted, "Our record didn't indicate the enjoyment or enthusiasm that we shared."

Led by senior Joseph Marcinkowski, high scorer and rebounder for Fenwick and League All Star, the team often played impressively. In one important game against Arlington Catholic, Marcinkowski was top scorer with 32 points. Another game against Cardinal Spellman was both a success for Fenwick and for Brian Ierardi who was the high scorer with 19 points and top rebounder with 11. Congratulations to everyone on the team for their great efforts this year.

Fenwick Cheerleaders — A Step Above Entertainment

The purpose of a cheerleader is to motivate both spectators and athletes. The Bishop Fenwick cheerleaders succeed in doing this, but their hard work does not always take place in the gymnasium or in the stands. Fenwick cheerleaders practice at least one night a week and a few hours before each game refining countless cheers and exciting dance routines.

Coached by Mrs. Fran Ward and led by Tri-Captains Maura Sheehan, Victoria Mikulski, and Lauren Ward, the basketball cheerleaders have motivated the boys on to many victories. The hockey cheerleaders are coached by Mrs. Mary Ham and captained by seniors Michelle Berube and Mary Mizioch. Despite a disappointing season, the girls were able to inspire both fans and players.

Both Teams Win on the Track

The boys' indoor track team finished their season as Greater Lynn League champions with a 9-0 record, and an overall record of 13-4. The highlight of the season was the final meet against Dom Savio. Both Fenwick and Dom Savio entered the meet undefeated, but only Fenwick captured the championship by a score of 51-35.

Scott Sirois, Joseph Ryan, Michael Valotto, and Patrick Foss were all major contributors to the team, and they shared the responsibility of leadership as captains. Senior Scott Sirois broke the two-mile school record with a time of 9:53. He also set a school record for the mile relay along with his classmates Joseph Ryan, John Mahoney, and John McCaffrey.

The girls' indoor track team also enjoyed a successful season finishing second in the Dual County league with a record of 7-1. Captains Kathleen Jenkins, Shannon Fletcher, and Rose Vitale led the team. Fletcher and Jenkins qualified for the Eastern State Championship Meet along with Elaine Veloukas for the hurdles, and Lynda Lipson for the shot put.

Special praise goes to Shannon Fletcher who is the Class B State Champion in the 600 yard run. Elaine Veloukas broke three school records in hurdle events and tied the school record in the high jump at 5 feet. Another school record was set by Lynda Lipson with a shot put distance of 36 feet, 1 inch.

Both teams worked hard this season and have records that reflect their efforts.

Ski Team Enjoys Rebuilding Year

The Bishop Fenwick ski team competed at Bradford Hill for the fifth year in a row. Although the members found it difficult to schedule practices due to inclement weather, the team enjoyed a rebuilding year. Captains Amy Monahan, Julie Day, Caroline Donovan, Kelli Murray, Matthew Armitage, and Adam Margolis attribute the team's success to their new coach, Mr. George Waddell.

The Fenwick ski team was very fortunate to be led by cousins senior Amy Monahan and junior Michael Curran. They were Fenwick's top racers, scoring 127 and 174 points, respectively. Amy finished sixth in the League and first for Fenwick; Michael finished seventh in the League and first for Fenwick. Both qualified for the State Meet and the Bay State Games.

In conclusion, the captains would like to wish the Fenwick ski team the best of luck in the future.

In Step with Stephen Gundrum

Mr. Stephen Gundrum arrived at Fenwick in September of 1986 and, like many newcomers, he became involved in school life. In addition to teaching physics and chemistry, Mr. Gundrum recognized the need to develop a better equipped weight room at Fenwick. At the time of his arrival a weight room with a few pieces of equipment existed, but Mr. Gundrum felt it was inadequate. Principal Ralph LeDuc approved Mr. Gundrum's proposal for more sophisticated equipment, and with aid from the Development Fund, Mr. Gundrum proceeded to expand the weight room during the following spring.

When asked what motivated him to undertake this project, Mr. Gundrum mentioned two factors. First was his own association with weight training since he had belonged to a power lifting team at New York State College. While on this team he placed second in 165 pound weight class and his personal best was 285 pounds (bench press), 425 pounds (squat), and 485 pounds (dead lift). Second, he states that a good weight program will enable all Fenwick athletes to be "a step ahead of the competition." For example, weight training combined with proper nutrition will help an athlete to develop strength, speed, and endurance.

Mr. Gundrum also feels that weight training can be beneficial for all students at Fenwick. "Weight lifting is a healthy form of exercise for all muscles in the body including the heart. It is an inspiring sport because people can set specific goals for themselves and achieve them. Other benefits include building self-confidence and relieving stress. In the end, a person who is involved in a weight program looks better and feels better."

Presently the weight room is available to all students and is open three days a week during the spring. Mr. Gundrum plans to purchase more specialty equipment and hopes to form a Fenwick Weight Lifting Team.

by Kara Barbeau

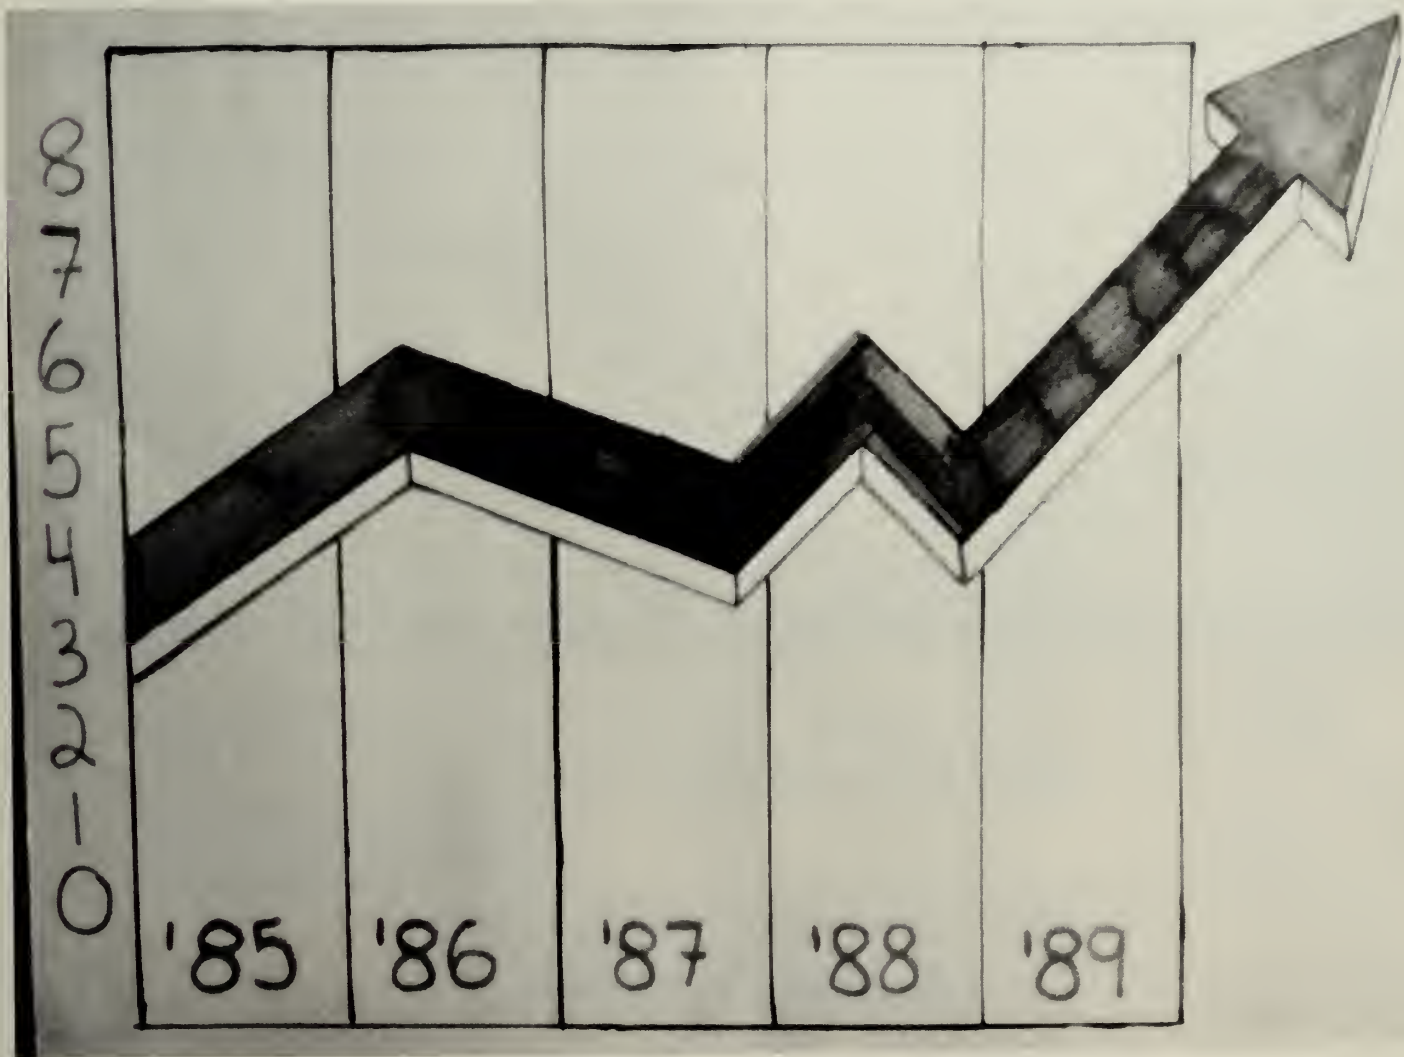

Clockwise: Helping hands. Michael Gioacchini receives a little support from Robert Roderick. Smiles of strength. Dennis Cormier and Anthony Barbaro build endurance in the weight room.

Fenwick has been a crucial step in our lives. The preparation we have gained here will last us for the years to come. For now that we are nearing the close of another year, and for seniors, the end of our Fenwick experience, we realize that the journey continues. Life is full of steps, and most of them lie ahead of us. Fenwick has prepared us for the next steps. Climb on!
